girlQ: change default left value of a input[type="date"] on focus I'm trying to change the default left value of an input type of date from "1900-01-01" to "1970-01-01" if it is focused. I know that I can set it to the current date, but how can I check if the date is set to 1900-01-01
and make that change then?
jQuery(document).ready(function($) {
 if($('input[type="date"]'))
 $(this).focus(function(e) { //How do I check if 1900-01-01 is the default and make it 1970-01-01 }); }); What I want to achieve is something like this: A: Use: `$(this).data('old-value', $(this).val());` and: `$(this).val(newValue); $(this).data('old-value', $(this).val());` `$(this)` is currently the document object (and maybe a reference from the event). So, you need to reference `$(this)` from the event (this inside your function). If you need to modify the value, you need `$(this).val()`.

A: Actually I need to use `this.value` on the focus event of the `input[type="date"]`. From the w3schools.com, it will result in the value of the `input[type="date"]` on focus: value: If set, value should be set as the current contents of the element I have posted a full working example below. JQuery

$("#input[type='date']").click(function() { // Detect date input as clicked if
    ($(this).datepicker().length == 0) {
        $(this).val(""); $(this).datepicker(); } });

$(function() {
  $('input[type="date"]').on('focus',
function(e) { if ($(this).data('old-value
